ALLERGIES

Keisho is not a "nuts-free" school. However, as a precaution we ask that families make an effort not to bring nuts or nuts-based products to Keisho. We have several students with severe nut allergies that would require medical attention if they ingested these products.

Enjoying Japanese food together is one of the pleasures of Keisho and is an opportunity to learn about Japanese culture and language. But please be aware that we cannot guarantee that the areas we use are nut-free.

Parents: please remind your children not to share food at snack time and to always check with teachers and parents before giving treats to see if a classmate has an allergy.

Parents of students with allergies should take all necessary precautions to protect their child, including keeping an Epi-Pen and/or medication in your child's backpack while at Keisho. Please remember to note any allergies in your Family Account and also inform your teacher(s).
